This is the first face-to-face session in which I have not broken multiple high-scores in Minesweeper and FreeCell. Sam was incredibly engaging and knowledgeable. He could work on time management as certain activities were allocated too much time and others too little. He should also consider deferring certain student questions to discuss after class or during break as certain students had highly specific issues to discuss. Appreciated his systematic approach to CASB questions.

I have had Sam as my Face to Face facilitator before. I must say he rocks!!!! He makes the Face to Face fun.

Awesome guy!

He is very awesome

This is the second time I've had Sam as a facilitator and he is hands down the most engaging facilitator I've encountered. I appreciate his energy and commitment.

Respect every student's questions and concerns and makes best effort to address all of student's issues.

Wonderful facilitator!

my facilitator was excellent. He provided real life examples for better understanding. He was also very good in explaining things and answering every single question. He is the best out of all facilitators i had.

He was very approachable and made the class a lot of fun. I usually don't like class participation but he made it very easy to participate in class.

Sam was great with keeping the students engaged. He stressed the importance of debriefing a case which is something I think is extremely important and not emphasized enough by other facilitators.

"This was the first time in 5 mods that I have felt that the facilitator kept the students engaged. I really appreciated Sam, he was a great instructor"

"I highly recommend that the Mod 4 and Mod 5 Sunday session be optional for students to attend. In other words, there should be no negative consequences by not attending. I believe that the large majority of students already understand the concepts behind the Sunday objectives and do not require the help of a facilitator - unless they want to be there. For myself, I would rather use the Sunday case material under a real exam setting at home or at work and not "use it" prior to actually studying. Sunday only reduces the cases available for more realistic practice studying. At this point, all the students understand how to prepare and there is very little value add in Sunday sessions. I strongly suggest that the majority of the students would rather take the 6 hrs and spend it studying on their own or by doing additional work instead of going thru the sample cases. Everyone is tired and there is no further learning done as we have covered the materials already in prior two days. Therefore, the session would be much better if students could elect to attend as this would allow them to have more time with the facilitator with specific questions. I promise that the overall satisfaction would greatly improve. It helps with more tutoring for those who need/want it and it provides more time to self sufficient students. Everyone wins! The FFIS are most useful for quants as "case writing improvement" cannot be taught over a weekend - or really improved significantly at this point. On another note, most students agreed during the weekend that the new marking reports do not provide much value and often confuse matters as the final results do not appear to agree to the "submitted" report card."

Sam is brilliant. His teaching and presentation of the information is second to none. When I found out I had Sam again for Module 5 (I had Sam for Module 4) I could not be more happier! He is a great asset to CASB.

great facilitator with a funny sense of humor - knowledgeable and ensures students are aware of the main topics

"Great facilitator, helpful and energetic!"

Sam is a very fair faciliator. He keeps the students engaged and does a thorough review of material.

"He was very knowledgeable, and was able to teach in a way that makes sense to me. Complex issues become much easier for me."

Very good as always
